	Residential site density and associated minimum subdivision size compromise a sustainable future. Socially, with crbon farming is removing families from rural communities. While there may be an influx of city folk arriving in our rural district, the rural areas themselves are still well below their peak of less industrialised, smaller holdings and thriving rural communities. While largee scale agriculture is the current dominant form of production, much of Waitaki is better than that. We have a great array of artisan produce currently produced on much smaller scale/supporting more than 1 residential unit per 20 hectares of prime Waitaki soil.
